

Gas-Concrete Compaction Method

Concerning the compaction of gas concrete we have developed a patented method, which avoids bigger air bubbles and blow holes within the concrete and leads to a homogeneous concrete structure.

The frequency range of the vibrators is regulated by a frequency converter, depending on the casting level of the form.

We will send you further information and specifications by request.